Artist's Statement

"My fascination continues to be the human face. My art making is spontaneous and improvisational. A whole day can be spent at work on a piece, only to have it realise itself in a short burst of activity. That burst might even take the work in a completely different direction from where I thought I was going. These are sometimes the most satisfying pieces to make. If I can surprise myself then, chances are, it may surprise the viewer as well. Once I am satisfied the work may be called 'completed', that is the moment when I sense I have captured an emotion...

...a story."
